This Jazz album recorded thirty years ago in Oslo and in Amsterdam was never released. The now so established musicians were back then at the beginning of their professional carriers and the tunes, all composed by Thomas Winther Andersen, were new and unexplored. Musical influences such as the lyrical music of Bill Evans, the high energy jazz by icons as Michael Brecker and John Coltrane and the fascinating melodic playing and improvising concepts developed by Warne Marsh and Lennie Tristano are all incorporated in the music.

About the recording Thomas says: The album was recorded and mixed direct to two tracks. When listening now, details I was picky about have vanished, I only hear how well we played. The spirit, energy, intention and feel of the music come across. Enjoy my Delayed Debut as a bandleader and composer.

Originally from Norway bassist and composer Thomas Winther Andersen now lives in Amsterdam. He has a unique melodic approach to his playing and often finds the moments for the bass to be featured or to decide the direction of the music. He made many albums under his own name, with Robert Rook and with his group Winther-Storm.
